

FACT SHEET

COMPANY OVERVIEW

RYAM is the leading global supplier of high purity cellulose specialties products, a natural polymer for the chemical industry. Working closely with its customers, the company engineers natural polymeric chemical chains to create dozens of customized high purity performance fibers at its plants in the US, Canada and France.

A Sustainable Future

Throughout RYAM's 95-year history, the Company has developed sustainable products from working forests. This innovation continues as the Company expands its product offering with its BioFuture. RYAM is working to develop a second generation (2G) bioethanol facility for Europe's fast-growing biofuels market and a carboxylated nanocellulose (CNC) to replace microbeads and to provide strength for concrete. The Company's commitment to sustainability extends beyond just new products. The Fernandina facility recently achieved a ISCC certification demonstrating its commitment to sustainable operations. The Company also published a new ESG Report highlighting its efforts to improve our environment, including a 40% reduction in Greenhouse Gas emissions from 2020 to 2030.
