MARKET ENVIRONMENT GLOBAL ECONOMIC TRENDS 2025

IMF rises global economic growth for 2025 to 3.0 % and for Germany to 0.1%.(1)

- Rising protectionism and tariff risks lead to uncertainty for global trade. Tax cuts, deregulation and support of governments for investments on the other hand create opportunities.
 - Demand for cars remained uneven due to geopolitical tensions and inflation resulting in low consumer spendings in Germany and other countries.
- OEMs face dual pressure: regulatory compliance and the need to accelerate EV transformation, while EV adoption varies widely by region.
- Outlook for 2025 for the industry depends on macroeconomic stabilization, customer sentiment towards e-mobility and OEM's ability to differentiate in a competitive landscape.
